Today, your family parked in a real-world math problem. To fit as many cars as possible—while keeping accidents to a minimum—engineers design parking lots based on available space, the dimensions of average cars, turning radius, traffic patterns and more.

Math—it’s what makes life predictable.